All Natural Ingredients: Papaya, Water and vinegar.

Stomach Soother aids in:

- * Lack Of Appetite
- * Diarrhea
- * Giving Medications
- * Cribbing
- * Ulcer Pain
- * Foal Scours
- * Weight Maintenance
- * Trailer & Travel Stress

Increased mucous secretion triggered by the papain enzyme is useful in conjunction with administration of any product that might injure stomach lining. Anti-inflammatory drugs and high doses of electrolytes, for example, cause less damage if administered with Stomach Soother.

Advantage over many other ulcer remedies because it is safe for long-term use. Most other ulcer remedies eventually cause side effects, such as poor calcium or vitamin B12 absorption, bacterial imbalance leading to colic and poor utilization of dietary protein.

Foal “scours” associated with the mother’s first heat milk improves by helping the foal’s digestion cope with the hormonal change in the milk.

Helps weanlings digest new diets while their gut microbes are adjusting.

Palatable sweet taste can also play a helpful role in administration of oral medications.

Some horses show improved temperament due to decreased stomach pain.

Helps with cribbing associated with stomach pain or missing nutrients.

Helps break down resulting undigested food, when antibiotics kill useful gut microbes, resulting in firmer manure.

Helps break down the food more efficiently in the limited time it is in the “nervous” gut when trailering horses resulting in firmer manure.

Benefits elderly horses with difficulties maintaining weight because it breaks down what their less efficient digestive tract can’t.

Effect on blood circulation may increase coat and joint health.

Does not test and no tranquilizing effect.
